Tokens, Medals and the Like

Our Strategy

We decided to have fun. It is our book, so we can include what we want.

The book includes medals, some interesting badges, good for tokens, advertising tokens, wooden nickels that look like coins (wooden nickels that look like bills are in the currency section), advertising mirrors (rare from Chattanooga), encased coins, etc.

We even decided to include a ticket from one of the street railways, since there were no transportation tokens that said street railway.

We had help from several collectors. Just because we do not have it, may not mean that it is very rare. Tokens are often found in hoards and a rare token today, may be common token tomorrow. Any rarity is based on our knowledge. We do not know it all.

New York Racket Store

Opened at 511 Market Street in 1889, the New York Store outgrew its location by 1898. It moved and became Miller's Department Store. Three of these tokens were found in the building when it was demolished in 1984.
Original Miller's Building Set For Demolition

In 1889, when Chattanoogaan Hayes Gray went looking for a pair of brogan shoes on Market Street, he saw a store window being decorated and two young men putting a sign up on the outside of the building.

Gray asked one of the men if they had any brogan shoes, and they replied that they did.

The merchant then identified themselves as the Miller brothers, and they told the saw works employee that he was their first customer.

That was at 510 Market Street, and those Miller brothers went on to greater things in a much larger downtown structure.

The original 510 Market building has continued to stand, being used for a number of different enterprises. But it will be coming down soon.

The Electric Power Board is tearing down that structure and others near it at the corner of Fifth and Market to expand its parking lot.

When the Miller brothers opened their store, they called it the New York Racket Store.

Raymond Payne, of the C.V. Brown and Brother realty firm, said the first recorded deed of trust on the 510 Market property was in 1883, indicating the structure was built about that time.

A saloon operated at the site prior to the venture by the Miller brothers.

Mr. Payne said that Bernard Wassman was one of the early owners of the building.

He said that a Mr. Poss operated a dry goods store there and lived upstairs.

Other occupants of the building down through the years included Schroeder Garden Center, Dial Finance, Economy Discount and Signature Finance, according to Mr. Payne, whose firm has handled the building for many years.

The business of Gus and Frank Miller grew quickly, and they moved to a new structure at the corner of Seventh and Market streets after the 1897 fire that destroyed the Richardson Building at that site.

The Millers had already left 510 Market prior to the construction of their own headquarters at Seventh and Market.

Mr. Payne notes that the 510 Market structure is one of the few remaining on the downtown thoroughfare with the old 1880s front.

That view of what was once the New York Racket Store will soon be remembered only in pictures.

NEW YORK RACKET STORE—That's the original name for the department store now known as Miller's, and this is its first location.

The 510 Market Street structure is slated for demolition to allow for expansion of the parking lot for the Electric Power Board. (Staff photo by Bob Nichols)
